South Coast Today covers Travertine Spa, a line of products created by lawyer, Terry Carter. Carter realized that the pressure of the law was driving him to the spa more and more and in time he decided to follow his heart and create the luxury products that form the Travertine Spa line. The products were designed for upscale salons and spas and include lavender massage oil, turbinado sugar scrub, and both shea butter and jojoba moisturizing products. According to the article, Travertine's Eden shea butter hand and nail cream ($43) is a favorite of guitarist Ottmar Liebert (his music is featured on their website).

Travertine's Eden shea butter hand and nail cream drew praise from famed flamenco guitarist Ottmar Liebert, who wrote Carter that the "shea butter is fantastic. It saved my hands last winter ... I use it almost every night."

The unisex line received favorable mentions from Women's Wear Daily, Health Expo TV, and the Washington Post Express.

Chanel Mademoiselle Bags
